Qualifications:

* A completed Master’s or PhD degree
Relevant experience teaching writing one-on-one and/or teaching in university courses with a significant writing instruction component is essential; having both kinds of experience would be a strong advantage.

Experience teaching writing one-on-one across the full range of disciplines taught at the University of Toronto Scarborough (including Humanities, Social Sciences, Management, Computer and Mathematical Sciences, Life Sciences, and Physical and Environmental Sciences).

A scholarly approach to one-to-one writing instruction, including familiarity with best practices is essential; an awareness of recent developments and issues in the field would be an asset.

Experience working with a diverse group of students and training in second-language instruction at the university level is an asset.

An academic background in Physical Sciences, Life Sciences, or Social Sciences is an asset.

Experience in teaching writing online, particularly in a synchronous teaching context, is an asset.

The University of Toronto Scarborough Writing Centre favours applicants with a long-term commitment to writing centre teaching.

Description of duties:

The chief duty of instructors in the Writing Centre is to tutor students individually on university writing in all disciplines, especially on response to the assigned topic, use of sources, organization, argumentation, style, and language use. Writing instructors may also be asked to develop pedagogical materials, collaborate with discipline-based instructors to develop and teach tailored workshops on aspects of academic writing, and support other Writing Centre programming.

Application instructions:

To apply, please email a cover letter, a Unit 3 application form (available online at http://www.hrändequity.utoronto.ca/forms.htm), curriculum vitae, the names and contact information of three references, a sample of instructional materials developed, and a short writing sample (maximum four pages). Please attach these requirements as one PDF document.
