Speaker #1: Jerri-Lynn Orr
Jerry-Lynn Orr is an Indigenous Curriculum Specialist, at Lakehead University. She is a student, teacher and researcher and holds a Master of Education in Education for Change: Specialization in Indigenous Education from Lakehead University. She is Cree/Metis and her family comes from Bigstone Cree Nation in Northern Alberta and much of her family resides in Winnipeg and Edmonton. She has extensive experience in curriculum development focused on Indigenous Ways of Knowing and being. Jerri-Lynn works to provide support for Lakehead University professors, instructors and staff as they work to include Indigenous content into their courses, programs and services.

Speaker #2: Andrew Bomberry
Andrew Bomberry is Mohawk from the Six Nations of the Grand River territory. He is a member of the Office of Indigenous Initiatives at the University of Toronto where he works as the Special Projects Officer (Indigenous Curriculum and Pedagogy) to support the university in the fulfillment of its “Calls To Action”. This involves working with professors on Indigenizing their curriculum on an individual, group, or departmental basis. Andrew has an extensive background working in public policy on a range of Indigenous issues at the federal and provincial level, where he applied Indigenous epistemologies to create effective policy solutions.

Time/date: June 27th from 9:30 am to 4:30 pm
Location: Catalyst Center, Environmental Science and Chemistry Building, UTSC

The workshop is “FREE” of cost but the registration is mandatory so the food can be ordered, and accommodation can be made based on the need of the attendees. Deadline to register is June 23rd, 2023.